She called up and said that she'd come on the mail bus so we waited till it was after dinner and Judge Hand had the case and he went and eat dinner and come back and when he come back she was there and he started the case and she had the warrant for assault and battery; that I'd assault and battered with her.

Q. Well, what happened about the case?

A. Well, she brings the two girls up here-

Q. Did they convict you or let you go, or what?

A. They let me go.

Q. Well now, was that after she left you?

A. No, that was before; the next day she left me.

Are
- Q. /You willing to take care of your child?
- A. Yes sir.
- Q. Have you tried to?
- A. Well, I wanted to but she wont; see, she made her brags that she was going to quit me and she was going to make me support her through Court, but she wasn't going to let me see the baby and she was going to tell the baby that some other man was giving her the money. I wouldn't get credit for it neither way.
- Q. Now, Mr. Brewton, how long have you been working; do you work regularly?
- A. Yes sir.
- Q. You always worked regular?
- A. I'm plowing 450 acres this year, working with Howard Vaughn, Robertsdale.
- Q. Are you on a salary or do you just get part of the crop?
- A. I get part of the crop. Well, we started off, I was on salary. I had some machinery, I put my machinery with his machinery and his boy got burnt and so it took what he had to pay the boy's expenses.
- Q. You don't make a regular salary?
- A. No. So I took the salary off on my own accord. I'm not on no salary.
- Q. You say again you know of no reason why your wife left you?
- A. No sir.
- Q. You haven't lived together as man and wife since March, 1950? Or two years and a half?
- A. No sir.
- THE COURT: Have you sent your child support, any money since your wife left you?
- A. No sir.
- THE COURT: Well, how much do you think would be reasonable amount for you to send the child each week; how much can you afford to send?
- A. Well, I'd love to do something for the kid; being that she is going to school, I would love to see that she's got plenty of clothes, plenty of shoes and something to eat and plenty of something in school.

THE COURT: I say, how much do you think is right? Here's the thing; I don't feel inclined to give you the right to visit the child which I can do, in this order, unless I am also at the same time making you pay something to support the child in bringing it up and I want to know what you think you can reasonably pay. You know if I order you; order her to let you see the child at reasonable intervals and let you; her visit you occasionally, I got to order you to help pay some of the expenses in rearing that child.

A. Well, like I say, I'd love to but I'd love to give it to the child.

MR. DeLANEY: Well, you're going to be in the position, Mr. Brewton, where you can't give it to the child. In other words, I realize the situation-

THE COURT: You didn't answer the question. How much do you think you could pay to support the child; ten dollars a week?

A. I don't know where I could pay that much or not.

THE COURT: Well, that isn't very much, but regular, every week; how much can you pay?

A. If I was making a regular salary it would be all right.

MR. DeLANEY: When do you get it? In other words, when do you expect to get any money? How long before you get your money?

A. Well, we're fixing to cut beans now.

Q. Well, what do you think you will get out of it?

A. That's hard to say and that wont last always.

Q. We just want an idea.

Q. That'll just come in a lump.

THE COURT: Well, the whole thing; I'm not going to order her to let you come and visit the child if I'm not at the same time ordering you to pay something toward supporting it. You Might as well get that straight in your mind and give me a straight answer. If she's got to pay all the support in rearing the child there's no need to recognize you as her father and no need for me to order her to do it.

MR. DeLANEY: In other words, you're going to have to make some weekly payments, specific weekly payments and you'll have to arrange your money so that it can be paid that way. Can you pay eight dollars a week?

A. I will as long as I can.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Well now, for the next two months I wont have nothing.

Q. Will you get any money at all; will you draw any money?

A. No, what I get I'll have to borrow it.

THE COURT: Didn't you all have a potato crop this spring?

A. No sir; corn neither.

THE COURT: Well, how about making her regular monthly payments then?

MR. DeLANEY: In other words, you can borrow enough to make a monthly payment, can't you?

THE COURT: Say Twenty-five Dollars a month; that isn't enough, but that's something; that's better than she's getting now.

MR. DeLANEY: You can do that can't you?

A. I'll try to do it.

MR. DeLANEY: You will have to do it. Now, in other words, when this order is made-

THE COURT: If I put it in the order, you'll pay or I'll stick you in jail.

MR. DeLANEY: Other words, regardless of your wife, regardless of what the relations may be, you've got an obligation to support your child and you told me you wanted to support her.

A. Well, I do. You see, what makes me not want to give her the money she made her brags when she left me that she was going to make me support her in court, and that way I wouldn't get credit for it.

THE COURT: If I let you visit the child regularly, you're going to be able to tell the child that you are supporting her, but I can't order the money paid to a child six years old. They wouldn't know how to spend it.

MR. DE LANEY: Of course, if she squanders the money, and anything comes up, the Court retains jurisdiction as far as the child is concerned, and you can/come in and show that to the Court. The thing we've got to do; we have to agree to that because that's fair and right and when that order is made you will have to make those payments and it will take that to support the child; now, can you do that?

A. I think I can. I'll do my best.

Q. Well, you'll have to do it. (I'll see that he does, Judge).

THE COURT: All right.

Mr. Clark Sunday, having been first duly and legally sworn, testified as follows:

ON DIRECT EXAMINATION

By Mr. DeLaney

Q. What is your name, please, sir?

A. Clark Sunday.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Sunday?

A. Robertsdale.

Q. How long have you been living there?

A. Fifty-two years.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Brewton?

A. Known him ever since he was born, about thirty or thirty-one years.

Q. What kind of a man is he?

A. He's a hard working man.

Q. Does he work regularly?

A. Yes.

Q. Does he work all the time?

A. Yes, he's a hard working man.

Q. Now, do you see him regularly?

A. I see him, well, at least once a week.

Q. Once a week?

A. Once a week and sometimes I see him more often than that.

Q. Now, he's been a hard working man for the last five or ten years?

A. As long as I knew him, ever since he's been big enough.

Q. You knew when he was living there with Mrs. Brewton, Mabel Brewton, didn't you?

A. I know when they were living but I never visited them or nothing; I don't know a thing about the family. Yeah, I know when they were living there.

Q. Do you recall the time that they stopped living together?

A. No, I couldn't cause I never paid much attention to it, you know, but I know him and I know her but what I mean I didn't visit around with them.

Q. I see. I'm not asking you now if you know anything about their domestic affairs, but do you remember the time she left him, or the day they separated?

A. Yeah; he told me about it.

Q. Well, have you seen her since that time?

A. No.

Q. You've just seen him?

A. Just seen him.

Q. How long ago has that been?

A. Well, it's been a pretty good--

A. A year; two years?

A. Well, it's been two years or better; it's been a good long time. Now, I even know the man that moved her; Tucker Steele is the man that moved her.

Q. You knew the man that moved her?

A. Yeah, I live about two or three blocks of them.

THE COURT: She hasn't been back there and lived with this man since that time?

A. No.

THE COURT: Has he been living there in the same place all the time now?

A. Well, he did live there after she left/awhile but now he's living down there with a man that he's farming with.

THE COURT: Well, has he lived here in Baldwin County all the time?

A. Oh, yes, yes. He's lived here practically all of the time.

THE COURT: To Mr. DeLaney: All right, write up a decree on abandonment and give him the right to reasonable visitation and order him to pay Twenty-five Dollars a month for the support of the child.

-11-
