I charge, you, Gentlemen of the Jury, that if you are reasonably satisfied from the evidence in the case that the Defendant willfully assaulted and beat the Plaintiff then he would be entitled to recover whatever damages you find from the evidence he has suffered and in addition thereto you could add punitive damages for such amount as you think he is entitled not exceeding the amount claimed in the complaint.

Given,
Jesse G. Maddison
Judge

2.

I charge you, Gentlemen of the Jury, that if you are reasonably satisfied from the evidence in this case that the Defendant did intentionally and willfully injure the Plaintiff he would be entitled to recover not only his actual damages but punitive damages by the way of punishment.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey J. Modjeski
Judge
