1. The first part of the paper is a review of the literature on the topic of the effect of the environment on the development of the child. This part is divided into two sections: the first section deals with the physical environment and the second section deals with the social environment. The physical environment section discusses the effects of factors such as nutrition, health, and climate on child development. The social environment section discusses the effects of factors such as family, school, and community on child development.

2. The second part of the paper is a description of the methods used in the study. This part is divided into two sections: the first section describes the subjects of the study and the second section describes the procedures used in the study. The subjects section describes the characteristics of the children who participated in the study, including their age, sex, and social class. The procedures section describes the methods used to collect data on the children's development, including the use of standardized tests and interviews with parents and teachers.

3. The third part of the paper is a discussion of the results of the study. This part is divided into two sections: the first section discusses the findings of the study and the second section discusses the implications of the findings. The findings section discusses the results of the study in relation to the hypotheses that were tested. The implications section discusses the implications of the findings for the theory of child development and for the practice of child development research.
