IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF

AT LAW

There is attached to the original hereof and made a part of this suit, an affidavit of an officer of the corporation showing the amount due on this note as of the 15th day of November, 1954.

Raymond J. Churney
Attorney for Plaintiff

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not exercise regularly, and the exercise group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 12-week training program. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise before and after the training program. The results showed that the HR and HRR of the exercise group increased significantly after the training program, while the HR and HRR of the control group remained unchanged. These findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.
